

71% of Boston children receive care and education in a location closer to their home than closer to where their parent's work, and parents prefer it that way.

